

Add - Personal account

Path to function: Accounts > Add > Personal account

Account creation runs over a four-tab wizard. Default values for some of these fields can be set under organisation preferences.

Login

First you set the username and whether they can log in via email address, then whether you want to email the user an activation code (recommended) or specify a password for them (e.g. if you are creating a test account for yourself).

The screenshot shows a wizard window titled "Create a new personal account under 'United Federation of Planets.'". The wizard has four steps: 1. Login (active), 2. Details, 3. Optional details, and 4. Permission sets. In the "Login" step, there is a text input field for "Choose a username*" containing "ufp wcrusher". Below it is a checkbox for "Login by email address" which is unchecked. There is also a date field for "Expires on*" set to "2022-09-12". Under "Create account and", there are three radio button options: "Email an activation code to the user" (selected), "Save in 'Accounts not activated' list", and "Specify a password now". At the bottom, there is a footer with "* required fields", a help icon, and "Cancel" and "Next" buttons.

Usernames must be unique. They include the prefix in the grey box - e.g. ufpwcrusher.

Details

Enter the user's details - all the fields on this tab must be completed. Depending on your schema you may see more mandatory fields here than first name (s), last name and email address. Checkboxes will appear here if they are marked as mandatory, but do not have to be ticked.

Optional details

These include non-mandatory fields. By default these are items such as group, title, phone number and department but your view may be different if you have custom schema fields.

Featured here is the group selector. If you have many groups, the search will reduce the list as you type. You can also create a new group if what you enter is not already in the list.
